Reporting to the Director of Home and Community Support Services, the ISN will assess individual care needs and eligibility, connect clients to community resources, and collaborate with families, caregivers, and health care providers to deliver integrated, culturally safe, and patient-centered care. You draw on both professional knowledge and lived experience to support wellness, healing, and efficient care coordination. You bring a positive, relational, and solutions-focused approach to helping others navigate complex health systems and return home with confidence and care.

We deliver a wide range of services, including Primary Health Care, Traditional Healing, Mental Wellness and Addictions, Home and Community Support, and Health Promotion and Disease Prevention. Our work supports community members from the seven First Nations of the Mamaweswen North Shore Tribal Council, urban Indigenous clients through the Baawaating Family Health Team and the SSM Indigenous Friendship Centre, as well as our four First Nation partners in the Chapleau and Michipicoten area through the Maamwesying Northern Clinic.
